

How to access our services

Each service we provide covers different areas. Visit our website for the full list of areas we cover.

We are happy to receive referrals and work with other providers to support people with disability. If you feel that you or someone else would match one of our services, we would love to hear from you!

All services are free of cost!

Since 1986, Self Advocacy Sydney has been supporting people with intellectual disability to become Self Advocates.

About Self Advocacy Sydney Inc.

Self Advocacy Sydney is a non-profit organisation providing a range of free services for people with disability.

These services include:

- Self Advocacy
- Individual Advocacy
- NDIS Appeals
- Disability Royal Commission
- New Leaders
- Peer Support

We provide individual and group support for a range of topics.

Our Services

Self Advocacy supports someone with intellectual disability to be able to speak up and represent themselves. Ideally they know what they want, and have a self advocacy goal they want to work towards.

Individual Advocacy supports people with any type of disability by speaking on their behalf and working together with the client so that they can achieve their personal goals.

NDIS Appeals is a service that helps people who want to appeal a decision made by the National Disability Insurance Agency (NDIA).

Disability Royal Commission can support people with any type of disability tell their story to the Disability Royal Commission by listening to them and help record their story or write it down.

New Leaders and Peer Support provides two types of training to people with intellectual disability:

- New Leaders is for younger people who want to learn to be future leaders and make positive change.
- Peer Support is for people who want to be supported and support other people.
